Sanibel Sea School Opens Campus at Sundial Beach Resort & Spa

Relaxed, Family-friendly Resort Ideal for Reaching Future Ocean Stewards

Sanibel Island, Fla.— Sundial Beach Resort & Spa is the newest campus for Sanibel Sea School offering guests and the community hands-on programs ranging from how barrier islands are formed to learning about sea turtle tracks. One of Sanibel and Captiva Islands' top non-profit organizations providing educational experiences and promoting conservation, the Sanibel Sea School at Sundial continues to expand their educational model. In addition to 33 two-to-three hour classes to choose from, the Sanibel Sea School offers seasonal activities to resort guests as part of their stay.

"This partnership between a resort and a non-profit organization promoting marine ecosystems enhances the educational experience of travel," said Dr. Bruce Neill, the executive director of Sanibel Sea School. "We are blending serious education with family vacations by providing fun and interactive ways to learn. We hear from many families that their time spent with us was a highlight of their vacation, and that they take home not only memories, but knowledge."

"Our recent transformation of the Resort Centre allowed us to seek partnerships to give guests tranquil and fun experiences," said Brett Lindsay, director of sales and marketing at Sundial Beach Resort & Spa. "Our upscale luxury resort, combined with the Sanibel Sea School's world-class ocean experiences enhances the guest's vacation by providing interactive classes about the ecosystems and wildlife that make Sanibel Island unique."

Sanibel Sea School, open five days a week, will offer guests and visitors half-day and full-day classes from $55. Classes are posted one month in advance so that guests may browse, choose and enroll online long before they arrive.

Registration is simple; students can book through the Sanibel Sea School website, at the front desk or on campus. To learn more visit www.sundialresort.com or www.sanibelseaschool.org.
